Spain's Royal Palace.

From one who paid a visit not long ago to King Alfonso at Madrid comes a wonderful account of his palace. It is bigger than either Buckingham palace or Windsor and is rarely inhabited by less than 2,000 people. On entering the palace one sees some 150 lackeys flitting about in different directions, and at the foot of the stairs and on the landings stand halberdiers in their uniforms of white and black and tricorn hats. The lift that carries you to the upstairs apartments is all rose colored brocade and cut glass—quite glorious within. The room where their majesties receive the diplomatic corps is noted for the beauty of the blue silk walls and clock with a life size figure of "Time" carrying the earth—a globe which forms the clock. Here are four superb chandeliers of rock crystal, set in gold filigree. The works of art include two beautiful pictures by Goya. Queen Mary Louise of Parma and Charles IV. of Bourbon. The state dining room is famous for its frescoes and tapestries and Sevres vases that are not less than six feet high—the loveliest examples of blue china.—London Gentleman.

Washington a Mecca of Diplomats.

In no capital are there as many foreign diplomats as there are in Washington. This is because all the Latin American states as well as European and Asiatic have embassies or legations in this country, and some of them do not maintain full missions elsewhere. Not all of these foreign representatives are kept busy by their regular duties, however, but they communicate with the state department whenever an opportunity offers, and sometimes they create the opportunity. Their notes must be treated with punctilious consideration without reference to the importance of the contents. One note may be only a request for an order to admit free of duty at a custom house a basket of champagne and another may inclose the draft of a treaty, but the state department must attend to the champagne as well as the treaty; otherwise it will irritate the representative of a friendly nation.—Gaillard Hunt in Harper's Magazine.

How to Tell a Celebrity.

He always selects the most conspicuous table in a restaurant. He is always looking for some one to recognize him on the street.

He invariably leads the conversation around to his own achievements.

He generally wears clothes, hats or ties a little different from any one else's.

He's a far better talker than he is a listener.

He always laughs loudest at his own jokes.

His wife always wears a worried look.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

The Illusion.

"So you are going to get married, eh?"

"Yes; the longing for a little home where I can put my feet against the wall, brace my chair back and smoke my pipe in comfort got to be too much for me."

"That's a beautiful dream!"

"Isn't it?"

"So beautiful that it will be a shame for you to get married and spoil it."—Atlanta Constitution.

Didn't Get It.

A man walked into a pawnbroker's shop one day and demanded $5 because there was a placard in the window that read, "Look at this watch for $5."

"I looked at it," he said, "and now I want my money."—New York Globe.

"She's late in doing it. Most wives attend to that at the start."—Baltimore American.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.*Common Colds.

Two classes of common colds are recognized by Dr. F. P. Smart in a Virginia medical review.

The infectious cold gradually passes to the entire family. The vasomotor cold is due primarily to exposure—exposure which, by lowering resistance in the head, permits the normal scavenger germs of the nose to become parasitic. When the feeling that a fresh cold is coming on is experienced the simplest preventive is a little vigorous exercise or a rapid succession of deep respirations. This is often effective, but if the vasomotor cold is not promptly broken up it develops the symptoms and dangers of the other class, except the infection. The treatment suggested as probably the best includes a brisk purge, a hot foot bath at night, a glass of hot lemonade, ten grains of Dover's powder, keeping well covered and late morning rising.

The complications liable to attend the cold that has become established are often overlooked or neglected and require special treatment to keep the nasal passages freely drained and ventilated and to provide for the removal of the irritating products.

WEATHER BULLETIN

Washington, D. C. Dec. 4.—Last bulletin gave forecast of disturbance to cross continent Nov. 7 to 13. Unusually cold preceding this storm, great rise in temperature will accompany it and warmer than usual will follow. This will be a severe storm and rains will become quite general. A cold wave is expected in the middle northwest near Nov. 4 preceded by rains in southern states, snows in northern sections and followed by frosts to the Gulf.

Next warm wave will reach Vancouver about Nov. 11, and temperatures will rise on all the Pacific slope. It will cross ridge of Rockies by close of 12. plains sections 13, meridian 90, great lakes and Ohio valleys 14, eastern sections 15, reaching Newfoundland Nov. 16. Storm will follow about one day behind warm wave and cool wave about one day behind storm wave.

From near Nov. 8 to 24 temperatures will average higher than usual and the cool waves are not to be expected to go radically low temperatures. The storms will be severe near Nov. 10 but during much of that seventeen days Indian summer weather will prevail.

A great scare was caused by the Canadian wheat fields being snowed under about Oct. 20, interfering with threshing. Better threshing weather is expected Nov. 8 to 24. This continent will plunge deeply into real winter weather immediately following that. The downward trend of temperatures reminds of Satan's headlong plunge into the bottomless abyss. Get ready for real work near Nov. 24. Week centering on Nov. 20 will average excessively warm.

We continue to advise farmers and planters to sell their grain and cotton. If the European war continues another year that country will not be able to buy our grain and cotton at present prices. There will be great danger of Europe ceasing to make specie payments. As we see in December wheat at Chicago is fairly represented by $1.50 in gold and the fluctuation above and below that have no sound foundation. When grain and cotton were much lower our advice not to sell proved good. Many will want to hold for higher prices, but the risk will be very great.

A change will occur in weather conditions following the Christmas holidays. The storms will discontinue in southern and make their paths in northern latitudes. Disturbances will not be so rugged in the States but will continue to pass frequently thru the Canadian provinces. The States will get an average of higher temperatures. Precipitations will be principally in Alaska, northern Rockies and on the northwestern Pacific slope. South America will be dry. In January will begin a great drought in all of northern Europe. All our Pacific slope will get too much precipitation. These conditions will continue at least till end of January.
